Military Information

5. There are five military camps in Belaya Tserkov, each camp designated by the term "Ploshchadka" followed by a serial number. Details concerning three of these installations are as follows:

a. Ploshchadka No. 2 is located behind the Belaya Tserkov railroad station. A number of artillery units are stationed at this camp.

b. At Ploshchadka No. 3 on Sholem Aleikhem Street, infantry and tank units are stationed. This camp has a radio signal center which serves all military units in the vicinity with the exception of the air force.

c. At Ploshchadka No. 5 on Krasnoarmeyskaya Street, infantry and tank units are stationed.

6. The headquarters of an air force division, which had been located on Bogdana Khmel'nitskovo Street until 1955-1956, was transferred to Antona Gordinskovo Street where it occupies a three-story building which is closely guarded. It is rumored that the Belaya Tserkov garrison command is located in the same building.

8. A military hospital is located on Krasnoarmeyskaya Street near the railroad station. It occupies a block of three buildings, one of three stories and the other two of one story each. This is a garrison hospital and it admits severe cases which the unit hospitals are not qualified to treat. The hospital area is surrounded by a wooden fence, and admittance is by permit, issued by the information office. The hospital is under the command of a medical officer holding the rank of Colonel (Polkovnik). The medical staff is composed entirely of medical officers, while the nurses and orderlies (all women) are civilian employees.

9. At Aleksandria, a suburb of Belaya Tserkov, the following installations are located:

a. An air force cantonment (Aviogorodok), commanded by a Colonel, which serves as headquarters of a number of air force battalions as well as paratroop units. A large number of housing units were constructed at the cantonment to accommodate pilots and other air force officers, some of whom had been living among the civilian population in the town itself.

The entire cantonment is surrounded by a wire fence and is considered a restricted area.

b. An airfield, located in the vicinity of the cantonment. A prewar installation, it has undergone considerable expansion in the last few years, including the addition of runways for jet aircraft. Various types of jet and piston-engine aircraft have been observed on the field.

c. An aircraft repair shop, which had been operating at the cantonment until 1957. With the completion of extensive construction work, the shop has since been referred to as an "aircraft factory" (Avio Zavod). According to rumor, the new plant has been constructed underground; changes on the surface are not noticeable.

Medical Information

10. The District Hospital is located on Kiyevskaya Street where it occupies two one-story buildings to which another floor was being added in early 1957. These buildings accommodate surgical, therapeutical (?) and tuberculosis wards, as well as the radiological department. The department of nervous diseases is located in a building adjacent to the Aleksandriyskiy Park.
